

A NOVEL IDEA FOR WORLD BOOK DAY

Pupils at Castle School swap books for their BIG READ

Pupils, staff and parents added their own twist to the traditional idea of World Book Day by sharing their favourite books with each other.

Everyone at Castle School near Narberth, from the youngest pupil in the nursery to the oldest teacher in the senior school, was asked to select one of their favourite books and bring it into to school to create a unique pop-up library. They were asked to attach a brief note to their contribution, explaining why they had chosen to bring in that particular book and why it was special to them.

Originally, the official school day was re-scheduled to finish early so that everyone could gather together and choose a book from the eclectic mix on offer. However, on the day itself the weather looked as though it might quash their plans.

Thankfully the school remained open long enough for the pupils to enjoy the hour they had been promised would be set aside for their BIG READ. Parents had also been invited and a couple of them even braved the elements to come and join in.
