

PUPPETS, CPR, DANCE AND LEONARDO DA VINCI – PREP STYLE

(part of Castle School's End of Year Creative)

Traditional lessons were abandoned at the end of term at Castle School when the whole school were invited to discover new skills or indulge in some of their favourite interests during a two day creative where pupils opted for different workshops run by staff who shared hobbies or activities they enjoy when not teaching their usual subject.

Miss Wheeler popped in so they could practise their mime for Prize Day and made sure that no-one was flagging in the sweltering heat. Thankfully the basement classrooms are lovely and cool!

Everyone got involved with puppet making, animation and cooking and clearly had fun, despite the intense concentration on their faces suggesting to the contrary.

They learnt about bridge building and had a go at coming up with their own constructions in class, before learning about Leonardo da Vinci's bridge which all pupils had fun constructing later.

Whilst the older pupils were busy in and around school, the prep school was busy too.

Everyone from the oldest to the youngest was shown some first aid skills by Director of Outdoor School, Ruth Harris, and now know the basics of CPR.

Others learnt new dance routines with Miss Algieri or new football skills with Senor Rodriguez.
